Human Capital Strategic Plan 2027-2031

The Office of Human Resources Management has developed a new strategic plan to guide our efforts and align our work to the greater Miami University mission and vision.

Miami University will pivot from transactional human resources (HR) to a strategic human capital model that enables institutional transformation. This plan aligns talent systems and workforce practices to support MiamiTHRIVE, Miami's academic innovation agenda, positioning the workforce to deliver on Miami University's student-first mission.

The Human Capital Strategic Plan will:

- Align staffing and talent systems to Miami's academic and regional goals.
- Build a data-driven culture for workforce planning, well-being, and leadership succession.
- Integrate technologies to enhance strategic decision-making, operational efficiency, and institutional readiness for a tech-enabled future.
- Stabilize and modernize compensation, benefits, and work models to remain competitive in a tight labor market.
- Invest in career pipelines and partnerships that strengthen the regional workforce.
- Through these actions, Miami will sustain its distinctive people-centered culture while evolving toward an agile, insight-driven, and future-ready workforce.

The Human Capital Strategic Plan positions Miami University to thrive amid rapid change, balancing the university's tradition of human connection with the power of data and technology. By aligning people, purpose, and innovation, and by embracing technology as both an operational and strategic tool, Miami will lead higher education's next era: agile, ethical, and profoundly human.

OHRM Satisfaction Survey

In alignment with Miami University's mission to pursue growth and excellence in a transformative learning environment, the Office of Human Resources Management is soliciting input from the community on our customer service and satisfaction. Now in every OHRM staff member email signature is a link to provide your feedback. This survey takes less than 2 minutes to complete and provides our team with valuable insight on how to improve our services and processes.

AI Fundamentals Microcredential

AI Fundamentals is a series of bite-sized microlearnings designed to introduce you to core concepts in AI. Free to all Miami staff, faculty, and students, this course's modules are developed by Miami University experts across disciplines, each of whom is on the cutting edge of AI research and teaching. Participants will learn key principles for using AI in your daily life and work.

Participants who complete the assessment at the end of each module in this series will receive a Miami University AI Fundamentals digital badge to add to their LinkedIn profiles and resumes. For more information and to sign up for the learning series, visit the link in the QR code.
